Featuring antimicrobial

Copper

Copper and its alloys, have been known for their ability to actively kill virus and bacteria since ancient times.

Surfaces coated in copper become naturally sterile within hours of contamination making it the material of choice wherever control of infection spread is essential. All Clean Team products feature copper coated panels as standard in areas of the units likely to be frequently touched for the ultimate in safe design.

This is possible thanks to our own unique formulation of liquid metal coating which forms a film on the surface of the fiberglass that looks and behaves exactly as would a solid metal plate. To function properly these need to be raw metal, so they will tarnish and need occasional polishing up.
